

Steven Migala is a Shareholder with Lavelle Law, Ltd. engaging in mergers and acquisitions, banking, corporate, real estate and estate planning matters. He graduated from Bradley University with an undergraduate degree in Finance, obtained his law degree from the University of Illinois, and was an editor on its Law Review. Steve acts as an outside general counsel to numerous entrepreneurs and privately held firms through the course of their formation, operation and termination, whether by way of acquisition, merger or dissolution. His estate planning and probate practice includes representing such entrepreneurs in connection with their estate and succession planning needs. In his banking practice, Steve represents banks and other financial institutions in the negotiation and documentation of commercial loans and counsels them in connection with loan workouts and foreclosures. Steve has experience with a variety of real estate transactions, including sales, purchases and leases.

Mr. Migala is active in the Chicago Bar Association, having served as the Chair of its Corporation & Business Law Committee in 2006-07. He is also a member of the City of Elgin's Planning & Zoning Commission.